EGRA ADMINISTRATION TERMS AND PROTOCOL

TERMS
tablet	The electronic device used to collect data.
Tangerine/XXXXX	The name of the software (computer program) that displays the EGRA test and the questionnaires.
application	Various programs on the tablet indicated by a symbol or drawing.
stylus	The stick or “pen” used to input information into the tablet. Tap the stylus gently on the tablet to select a test, navigate between tasks, and mark responses.
administrator protocol	The test “booklet” used by the assessor to read the instructions and mark the pupil’s responses (will only be used as backup if the tablet is not working).
stimuli	The paper placed in front of the child during EGRA. For EGRA, the pupil stimulus is used for the letter sounds, non-word reading, and oral reading fluency tasks.
ADMINISTRATION RULES AND TIPS
subtask	Name for the specific tests within the EGRA instrument. For example, “letter sound identification” is a subtask in EGRA.
start	Start the task by tapping on “start” on the tablet (or pushing “start” on the stopwatch) when the child first speaks the first letter or word. If the child does not provide a response for the first item, the “3 second rule” is applied and you should start the timer after 3 seconds and then tell the child to “go on”.
slash/tap	An incorrect response is ALWAYS indicated by a slash mark. On paper, the mark looks like this: (/). On the tablet, tap the item and a slash will appear like this: (—b—)
3-second rule	If a child does not provide a response to a given item (e.g., letter, number, or word) after three seconds, mark the item as incorrect. Point to the next item and say, “Please go on.”
skipped item	If the child skips a letter or word, mark it as incorrect.
skipped row	If the child skips an entire line, mark the entire row incorrect (press the asterisk [*] at the end of the row in Tangerine).
early stop rule	If the child does not provide any correct responses (including “no response”) after a certain number of items in EGRA, the “early stop” rule is applied. This means that the subtask is discontinued or stopped. The rule is different in every subtask. In Tangerine, the system will automatically stop the subtask. However, if marking on paper, you must be aware of the “early stop” rule for each task. Note that some subtasks do NOT have an early stop rule.
language	Be sure to indicate the language of each subtest during the transition/introduction and to use the correct stimuli. Anytime you see (main local language) or (EGRA language) in a questionnaire item, this refers to the language we are assessing, i.e., LANGUAGE 1, LANGUAGE 2, ETC. Replace the term with the language name when asking the question.
energizer	Halfway through the assessment it may be necessary to do a simple energizer to maintain the child’s attention. For example, invite the child to stand up and stretch. Play a quick hand gesture game. The activity should be quiet and contained within your assessment area.

Handout 7.5: EGRA Assessor Reference Sheet pronunciation	EGRA is a reading test, not a pronunciation test. If children in a particular area pronounce a word in their regular speech differently than elsewhere, they should not be marked incorrect for their variation of pronunciation when reading that word. This is not a reading error.

vertical reading	If the child begins to read vertically, discontinue the child from reading and point with your finger to show the child that s/he should read from left to right. Restart the section. This may be done ONLY ONCE. If the child continues to read vertically (or in another manner), allow 3 seconds for each item in the first row, mark the items as incorrect, then discontinue the task.
finger-pointing	The child can follow a reading with his or her finger. The child SHOULD point during the stimuli tasks.
stop watch	If it is necessary to record assessment results on paper, write the time shown on the stop watch at the bottom of timed tasks (not the time remaining).
learner interview	The questionnaire should be administered verbally. Pay attention to when you should or should not read aloud response options.
testing materials	Hold the tablet or the clipboard out of the child's view. The pupil stimuli is blank side up except when the child is reading it.
